Industry 4.0 brought with it a wave that made the modern-day firm relies heavily on interconnectivity, automation, machine learning, and real time data. Though, the data sharing has enhanced decision-making processes and interconnectivity has enabled a faster and better company ecosystem, the biggest challenge firms face today is the need for connectedness and access to real-time insights across processes, partners, products, and people. While the data requirements are managed by technical tools like big data analysis the connectedness part requires a high degree of human intervention. That is where HR 4.0 comes into play! Human resource like other aspects of industry is not untouched from the effects of industry 4.0. This will make HR focus more on strategic objectives while automating the routine work. With access to real time data, advanced prediction models and high connectivity, the key differentiator for company growth will be deciphering patterns in data to decode changes and align decisions quickly. This would require the HRs to be more flexible and responsive, this is the key challenge that HR 4.0 is expected to face.

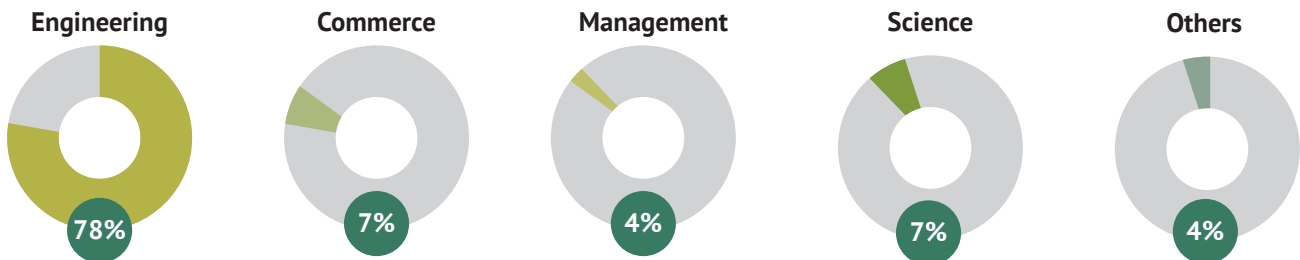

The conclave explored the issues mentioned below as subthemes:

- 01
Future of Work – Redefining the workplace
- 02
Workforce Readiness – Towards a future-ready workforce
- 03
